

Dear Reader,

Cancer Control has now been published for 10 years, and we have greatly appreciated your valuable support and feedback. Accomplishments of particular note include being fully indexed in Index Medicus and MEDLINE in 2000 and having all issues available online and in full text (<http://MoffittCancerCenter.org/ccjournal>).

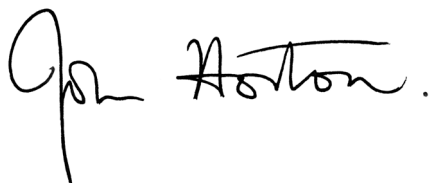

As we enter our second decade of publication, we will continue with our original mission, ie, to bring a sound synthesis of current and translational cancer management techniques to our national and international audience of oncology practitioners by publishing balanced and comprehensive reviews of a range of specific oncologic topics in an attractive format.

You will note some changes in this first issue of 2004. There are differences in type, font, and use of color that we believe will enhance the readability of each issue.

In addition, the number of questions in our popular CME feature has been reduced, although each issue will continue to provide 4 credits of category 1 CME. Unfortunately, we now have to charge a small amount for recording the CME. Subscriptions will continue to be offered at no charge to oncologists, but a nominal fee will be charged to non-qualifying individuals and institutions.

Please let us know your opinions about the changes we have made and, in particular, what oncologic topics you wish us to consider addressing in future issues.

As always, thank you for your interest and support.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "John Horton." The signature is written in a cursive style with a large initial "J" and "H".

John Horton, MB, ChB, FACP
Professor of Oncology & Medicine
Editor, Cancer Control