KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Risa Stack, Ph.D.

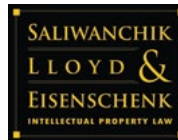

Dr. Risa Stack, a Partner at Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers, has 15 years of experience investing in personalized medicine, therapeutics, and platform technologies. Her investment career spans incubations to public companies. Most recently she has focused on starting companies, often taking operational roles.

Since joining Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers in 2003, Dr. Stack has worked to build and support

KPCB's personalized medicine portfolio. She has been the founding CEO and a board member of several personalized medicine companies including Nodality and CardioDx. In addition to her work directly with the portfolio, Dr. Stack is involved in developing public policy in molecular diagnostics and personalized medicine, as well as the development of therapeutics companies including Trius and Corthera. She was most recently a board member of Corthera, which was sold to Novartis in December 2009. She also is a board observer at Epizyme and Pacific Biosciences.

Prior to joining KPCB, Dr. Stack was a Principal at J.P. Morgan Partners in the life science practice for six years. While at J.P. Morgan Partners she sponsored a series of investments including Acurian, Connetics (acquired by Steifel Laboratories), Diatide (acquired by Berlex), Ilex Oncology (acquired by Genzyme), Illumina, and Triangle Pharmaceuticals (acquired by Gilead).
